Carver-Price School News

Hello Readers! The last basketball game at home was played Monday night, February 28, against Charlotte County Training School. Preliminaries were played against the girls from Charlotte. They won by a score of 31-19. The Panthers won over Charlotte by a score of 57-41. Enthusiasm was great and the yells good. Curtis Whitted, Willie Lilly, Eugene Browder, Allen Watkins and Edward Lilly, who make up the first team are graduating this year. There was such a wide margin in scores after the half that the second team was put in several times. Hurrah!

Tournament time is here. Our team left Wednesday morning to play in the Southwest District Tournament at the V. M. I. Fieldhouse. The semi-finals games will be played against Waynesboro at 2:30 P. M. Finals will be held at 7:00 P. M. Students and cheerleaders accompanied the team there.

The Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow in our school is Sarah Harvey. She received the highest score in a written examination, which tested the homemaking knowledge and attitudes of the senior girls in the graduating class. She will be entered in competition to name this state's candidate for the title of All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. She will also receive a golden award pin, cook books for herself and the school. The national winner in this search conducted among 187,000 young women in 8,000 of the nation's public, private and parochial high schools will be named April 21 at an American table fete in Philadelphia.

A schoarship of $1,500 will be awarded each state winner and she will receive a trip with her advisor to Washington, D. C., Colonial Williamsburg, and Philadelphia. The national winner will be awarded a $5,000 scholarship.

English II students produced and directed their original radio scripts in the auditorium last Thursday. The English 10 and Fifth Grade classes joined in the listening. The four scripts presented were among the best written in this class—"A Colonial Boy," by Laura Hubbard "Be Yourself," by Barbara Johnson; "A Talk With Mother," by Gloria Jenkins; and "Practically Seventeen," by Effie McCoy. Tape recordings were made of these. The microphone, music and commercials were used.

The Girls' Intramural Basketball Tournament begins next Tuesday at Activity Period. The first game will be between the 8th and 9th grades.

Until next week, our thought: ::We cannot conquer fate and necessity, yet we can yield to them in such a manner as to be greater than if we could."

YOUNG WOMEN RECRUITS MARINES TO SEEK MORE

Arlington, Va.—The United States Marine Corps announced today the beginning of an all-out campaign to interest young women in volunteering for service with the Corps.

Acting on orders from Colonel John R. Lanigan, USMC, director of the Fifth Marine Corps Reserve and Recruiting District, all local recruiters will immediately start concentrating their efforts toward selling the many opportunities offered by the Marine Corps to young women between the ages of 18 and 31.

Service in the Marine Corps now offers qualified young women an "Adventure in Living," featuring educational opportunities, athletic and recreational programs, and a chance to serve with the Marines in Europe, Hawaii, and in all parts of the United States.

The opening of the new recruiting drive followed closely the 12th anniversary of the Women Marines. They were organized as Women Reserves on February 13, 1943. Prior to this time the only women that had ever served with the Marine Corps were a small group of Marinettes, who served in Washington during World War I.

HILL VIEW ROAD NEWS

Rev. David L. Bailey filled his regular appointment at Hollywood Church Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Franklin visited in the home of J. G. Franklin Sunday evening.

Mrs. C. E. Franklin and Elmo Smith visited in the home of Mrs. Robert Jenkins Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Franklin visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ferguson one day last week.

Mrs. J. G. Franklin entertained with a birthday party at her home on Friday night in honor of her father's birthday. He is 80 years "young." The dining room was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of blue and pink. The twotier birthday cake and other confections were in the same color scheme. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Early Franklin, Mr. Harry Kestner, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Megginson and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. James W. Franklin and children; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde White and daughter; Miss Iris Christian Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Franklin Jr. and children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jenkins and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. David Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Franklin and sons, Jr. and Mrs. Joe Goin and children, and Elmo Smith.

NIGHT PASTURES

Sattle graze heavily after each milking—which means night pastures are as important as day pastures.

This fact is pointed up in research at VPI Agricultural Experiment Station, where observations were made during again days in July, August, and September for 2-lot and 10-lot rotational grazing systems. The per cent of all cows grazing hit a peak immediately after both the morning and night milkings.

For steers the heaviest grazing periods occurred from 4 to 8 A. M. and from 6 to 8 P. M. They grazed only lightly during mid-day, and very little after dark.

NEED FOR NEW WATER CODE SEEN PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD

Need for a new water code to supplant the "unduly restrictive" and outmoded "riparian system" now prevailing in Virginia, is pointed up by Dr. H. N. Young, director of the VPI Agricultural Experiment Station.

Dr. Young, who is a member of the Virginia Legislative Advisory Council's water resources committee, of which John H. Daniel, of Charlotte Court House is chairman urges the general public to attend a series of hearings being held in the state.

The purposes of these hearings are to acquaint the general public with the water problem, to study local water problems which have legal implications, and to get ideas, suggestions and recommendations. Hearings are scheduled for March 3 in Wytheville, March 4 in Staunton, March 17 in Danville, March 18 in Farmville, and April 7 in Richmond.

Dr. Young says the first step in making water available to crops during dry weather is the development of a sound and comprehensive legal code which will encourage the maximum beneficial use of water and will discourage waste. Under the riparian doctrine, any property owner whose land touches a flowing stream, has the right to reasonable use of the water, including its use for domestic purposes and watering livestock. He must, however, pass on the water in the stream to his neighbor below substantially the same in amount and quality.

The owner of the property not touching a stream has no legal right to use water from it. Furthermore, those who want to get water cannot divert it from a stream in one watershed and discharge it in another without special legislation.

Dr. Young says the riparian system imposes a serious brake on economic progress not only on the farm but in commerce and industry as well.

A new water code is needed which will: encourage agricultural resource development in line with the basic capabilities of the land make secure the investment of water users; clarify legal rights to the use of water; aid in reducing destructive forces of nature; and provide an effective administrative means for guilding people in the balanced use of water.

A start has been made in developing a new water law. The 1954 General Assembly established a state policy relative to the surface waters of Virginia, describing them as "a natural resource which should be regulated by the state. . . ." However, it does not define the rights of water users, and has not set up a legal authority for administering such rights. These are jobs which will need to be done in subsequent acts of the General Assembly.

VALC was directed by the 1954 Assembly to study the water policy of the state and to prepare drafts of such legislation as may be needed to put the policy into operation. The Council was also directed to report to the Governor and the General Assembly not later than October 1, 1955. The Council designated its water resources committee to make the investigations and prepare preliminary drafts of proposed water rights legislation.

The importance of increasingly wise use of water resources is pointed up by the fact that the U. S. Geological Survey estimates the demand for water by industry alone will rise 170% by 1975, Dr. Young says. In Virginia, there has been with a few exceptions, enough water on farms to meet needs of the farm home and to water poultry and livestock. The situation with respect to crops is entirely different. The annual water needs for growing crops on Virginia farms is considerably more than the combined amount used by industry for domestic purposes, by municipalities, and for livestock.

SURGERY BEST WAY TO CASTRATE CALVES

There are many pros and cons about the best way to castrate calves. The way Dr. S. L. Kallison, veterinarian at VPI Agricultural Extension Service, sees it, surgery is the best and surest method. His rules are: be clean, allow for drainage by carrying the incision to the bottom of the scrotum, and use a mild disinfectant after the job is done.

Those who favor the emasculatome may find it doesn't do the job in many cases. And failure often does not become apparent until the animal is ready for sale.

As for the elastrator—it leaves an open wound for two to four weeks, and that's asking for tetanus and other infections. Furthermore, the rubber can lose its elasticity, failing to do the job and causing possibly fatal inflammations.

LETTER LAUDS DR. CHRISTIAN

(Note: Permission has been obtained to publish the following letter).

Pamplin, Va.,
February 28, 1955.

Dr. David A. Christian, Jr.
Dear Dr. Christian,

I must write this letter before another day is gone. Perhaps you consider this letter as one coming from the entire population of the little town of Pamplin and the surrounding community.

My vocabulary and education are far too limited to properly express the deep feeling of loss suffered by the tragic death of Dr. David, III.

Everyone who had ever been acquainted with him either socially or professionally loved him.

His daily life and the practice of his profession was a shining example of witnessing for Christ.

His was a life of service, daily practicing to the letter the "Hippocratic Oath."

Many times he was called to our town, and always he came willingly and quickly, giving to all his professionaly skill and kindness, regardless of race, color or creed.

His serene manner brought order out of chaos to many homes, and when nothing more could be done he left comfort and courage in those homes. This must have stemmed from a deep abiding faith in God.

I am a graduate nurse R. N. and became well acquainted with him. Often he sent patients to me for medicine or treatment which I could give, thus saving time and money for many of his patients who otherwise might have had to wait until his busy schedule gave him time to come to them.

Whatever our questions may be as to why death came to him in the way it did, I feel he died doing what he had always done, giving loving unselfish service to his fellow man. I'm sure the Master said. "Well done," when He welcomed Dr. David home.

I never had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Christian socially, but I am very sure God will take her hand and yours, and give His loved ones the strength and help you will need in the long hours ahead.

You must have been a wonderful father to have had such a fine son.

My husband, family and all the people here join me in this expression of sympathy.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Richard F. Williams.

FOREST RESOURCES GROUP MEETS IN LYNCHBURG TUESDAY, MARCH 15TH

The Commission on Forest Resources created by the General Assembly in 1954 will meet in Lynchburg at the Virginian Hotel on Tuesday, March 15, 1955. Paul D. Sanders, Editor of the Southern Planter, is Chairman of the Commission and the other members are: Robert S. Burruss, Lynchburg; Jesse Glick, Bridgewater; Senator Garlany Gray, Waverly; W. H. King Burkeville; Lee J. Spangler, Emporia; and J. Hubert Wheeler, Ewing.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 22, which created the Commission, points to a decline in merchantable timber in Virginia during the recent years and emphasizes the importance of this natural resource. It directs the Commission to investigate the supply of timber remaining in Virginia, especially softwood, determine the most drastically depleted areas, study present cutting practices and consider the most advantageous practices that should be put into effect. It is also required to determine regulatory measures, if any needed for adequate timber supplies.

The Commission is directed to report to the General Assembly by November 1, 1955.

Appomattox is a growing town.
